

Southern Celts: A narrative inquiry

A participative session exploring lives as ‘lived and told stories,’ using three frames of narrative analysis: time (past, present and future) place, and sociality (or the intersection between the individual and society). An opportunity for individuals or groups to focus on a narrative linked to their cultural backgrounds, to analyse and reflect on why and how to tell it.